MARGARET EATON GIRLS' ANNUAL PROGRAM

Trim in green suits, the girls of the Margaret Eaton School, teachers-in-training, swung on to the gymnasium floor Saturday evening to the music of Danish folk-song from Niels Bukh's school in Denmark. Danish fundamental gymnastics opened the program to the school's annual demonstration. Addition of a bow of ribbon to their hair, and, presto! the juniors were little tots playing singing games. Both junior and senior games and relays were interesting and unusual, particularly the game of rink, in which two Indian clubs formed the goals. Tap and folk dancing, maze-running, stunts and pyramids added variety. Modern dance technique by the juniors and dance in a lyrical vein, the latter the composition of the Dance Club, were presented. Miss Florence A. Somers, director, was assisted by Mrs. Ralph Raymer, Mrs. E. P. S. Allen, Miss Shirley Naylor, Miss Mildred Wickson and Miss M. Donald Snellie. Miss Flora Gray and Miss Margaret Cochran were the accompanists. The demonstration will be repeated tonight.

McLAUGHLIN—PELTON VOWS

The marriage took place quietly on Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Pelton, St. Edmund's Drive, of their daughter, Alice Evelyn Pelton, Danville, to Mr. Clarke McKendrie McLaughlin, son of Mr. and Mrs. George McLaughlin of Cardinal. The couple left on a short motor trip to New York and Atlantic City, and will live in Cardinal on their return.

the Class "D" choir from Queen

Club. There was a clarinet ensem-

Comed the decision of the Canadian Government to send the Second Division overseas at an early date and had agreed to facilitate its movement, said Mr. Rogers. This did not mean the Division would move immediately. The transport problem alone presented some difficulty.

Like the 1st and 2nd Divisions, the 3rd will be formed out of units of the non-permanent active militia.
Selection of units would be made as before with a view to giving representation to the various sections of the country and to the ease with which reinforcements might be recruited.

The Minister, who served as a private in the last war and who returned only last week from consultations with war leaders in the United Kingdom and France promised all possible information to the House on war activities, subject to the necessity of preserving secrecy on certain matters.

He paid special tribute to the work of the Royal Canadian Navy, which has been on continuous and arduous service since the start of hostilities. British naval authorities, he said, had expressed appreciation for the work done by the Canadian ships and seamen, particularly in the organization of convoys.

The acquisition of two new destroyers will bring the destroyer strength of the navy to nine. At present there are seven such ships, including one flotilla leader.

In considering the extent of the Canadian war effort, he said, it should be remembered that the strength of the Navy was now approaching that of an army division and that when the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan was in operation a year the strength of the air force, which now amounted to about that of an army division, would equal three or four divisions.

PRIZES PRESENTED

Sixteen young women were accorded graduation honors, Tuesday afternoon, at the Margaret Eaton School ceremony, at which Chairman W. J. Dunlop, director, Department of University Extension and Publicity, gave the message to the graduating class.

Rev. Canon R. A. Armstrong gave the invocation and presentation of awards and diplomas was made by Miss Florence A. Somers, director of the school. In the absence, through illness, of the valdictorian, Miss Jean Meredith, her paper was read by Miss Jean Morrison. Miss Mary Walker also substituted for Miss Meredith in the ceremony of handing over the reins of student government to the incoming class, represented by Miss Dorothy Walker. A program of music was provided by the Music Club, with the school chorus singing "Land of Our Birth."

The gold medal for highest standing was awarded to Miss Jean Meredith. Honors in theory went to Miss Elizabeth Hope Bleakney and Miss Meredith.
Other graduates receiving diplomas were:

Misses Ann Noble Bartlett, Elizabeth Hope Bleakney, Diana Graeme Cameron, Frances Josephine Greenway, Mary Joan Mac-Millan, Margaret Elizabeth Marion May, Jessie Carolyn McGibbon, Jean Meredith, Jean Helen Morrison, Edith Almon Seixas, Kathleen Staples, Cecile de la S. Swanson, Mary Ross Walker, Alice Maryon Weiss, Marianne Ross Wilkin.

Miss Elizabeth Lenore Black and Miss Alice Rosemary Hesel-fine will receive their diplomas after completion of their second month in camp.

Canon Armstrong, quoting the Roman saying "A sound mind in a sound body," said that a sound soul was also needed and "everytime we gain a victory of soul we help the body." The mind, he asserted, improves as people grow in grace and the Will of God, is for each person, the highest mental, physical and spiritual development.

Mr. W. J. Dunlop speaking on "How to Succeed," stressed the importance of not grumbling and of giving all we have to our work.

While we're on the subject of "Waterloo Bridge," did you know there are two Waterloo Bridges?
The original bridge, built well over a hundred years ago in commemoration of the British victory at Waterloo, was endangered by Zeppelin bombings during the first Great War. Public opinion was so strong that the bridge was never torn down. However, within a few years it was necessary to erect a temporary steel structure, paralleling the old bridge, to take care of heavy traffic.

The first scenes in the new picture take place at the present time, with the action on the new temporary structure with the old bridge in the background. Subsequent scenes, which date back to the last war, take place on a replink of the original bridge. To picture the two bridges for film purposes it was necessary to build 600 feet of the two 1,300-foot spans on studio sound stages.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has announced its new season program, which actually opens with "Waterloo Bridge." Other headline productions will include "Susan and God" with Joan Crawford and Fredric March; "The Mortal Storm," from the novel by Phyllis Bottopne, with Margaret Sullivan and James Stewart; "New Moon," and "The Man in the Moon." The "Thin Man's Shadow" will bring together Myrna Loy and William Powell again, while Miss Loy will also be seen in "Third Finger, Left Hand" and Robert E. Sherwood's "The Road to Rome." Clark Gable will co-star with Miss Loy in "The Great Canadian," a hockey yarn which has been on schedule for several years now. Other Gable pictures will include "Witch of the Wilderness," Goldie American music stuff, "The Life of Simon Bolivar," the pirate South American objections, and "Osborne of Sing Sing," in which he will co-star with Robert Taylor.

Spencer Tracy is scheduled to do "The Ex-Mayor of Boys Town," "Sea of Grass" and "The Yearling." Norma Shearer will appear in a screen hodge-podge from Noel Coward's "Tonight at 8.30," and in a screening of the "Tenderloin" stage production, "The World We Make." She is also scheduled to appear in an original story called "Forever."

Katharine Hepburn will bring "The Philadelphia Story" to the screen, and the Marx Brothers will film "Go West," which they are currently trying out on the stage. Joan Crawford's schedule, which might be broken if she decides to do a Broadway stage show, includes Louis Bromfield's "Bombay Nights" and a second tentatively called "Woman's Face," with James Stewart as probable co-star. Robert Taylor's plans in-

MEMORIAL DEDICATED TO COL. HARRY M'GEE

"Rugged, Forthright Friend of Man," Rev. David Mac-Lennan's Tribute

A window in Timothy Eaton Memorial church depicting the Nativity of Christ was dedicated to Col. Harry McGee, late T. Eaton Co. executive, in a special service yesterday. Col. McGee died April 10, 1939, and the window was given the church by Mrs. McGee.

A companion window on the east wall, portraying the Presentation in the Temple, was given to the church by Col. and Mrs. McGee "to the glory of God and in sacred memory of Isobel McGee Porter" (their daughter), in 1932.

A memorial tablet beneath the two windows was unveiled by John Porter, a grandson, at the dedication yesterday. "Reverend Sir," he addressed Rev. David A. MacLennan, minister, "in the name of Mrs. McGee we ask you to receive this memorial, and to dedicate it to the glory and praise of God, in loving memory of Harry McGee."

"We accept this gift as a sacred gift," replied Mr. MacLennan, "and shall guard it reverently in honor of the faithful and devoted life to whose memory it is given."

Mr. MacLennan described Col. McGee as "rugged, simple, forthright and a friend of man." "He would never have doubted the final issue of the struggle in which we are now engaged, both as citizens and as Christians," he said. "He was one of Christ's torchbearers."

Monday morning in St. Dunstan's will reside on Mount Pleasant Rd.

The bride, formerly Carmel Mary Hagerty, daughter of Mrs. Serena Hagerty, Wanstead Ave., was given away by her brother-in-law, W. A.
Robinson. She wore a white faille taffeta gown with full skirt and long train, high sweetheart neckline, long fitted sleeves and tightly fitted bodice with covered buttons to a low waistline. She wore her mother's wedding shoes. Rev. J. J. Reddin performed the ceremony in a setting of giant white chrysanthemums and white carnations. Attending the bride, her sisters, Mary and Anna, were similarly attired in blue and pink shades of faille taffeta with fitted bodice, matching bows to the waist and billowing skirts with flowers at the bottom.
They wore matching hats and carried bouquets of roses. The groom's brother, William, was best man, while Jack Lawrence and David Hunter were ushers. At Hunt's Savarin, reception guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing dahlia-colored sheer crepe and carrying roses. For travelling, the bride chose a navy blue tailored suit and navy accessories, with a fitch neckpiece, gift of the groom.
The groom is a son of J. Percy
